Explanation:

Minimum DHCP Snooping Configuration

The minimum configuration steps for the DHCP snooping feature are as follows:

1. Define and configure the DHCP server.
2. Enable DHCP snooping on at least one VLAN.

By default, DHCP snooping is inactive on all VLANs.

3. Ensure that DHCP server is connected through a trusted interface.

By default, the trust state of all interfaces is untrusted.

4. Configure the DHCP snooping database agent.

This step ensures that database entries are restored after a restart or switchover.

5. Enable DHCP snooping globally.

The feature is not active until you complete this step.

NEW QUESTION: 4

Refer to the graphic.

What optional EIGRP configurations will be required in order to achieve full connectivity within AS 100?

- A. Use the EIGRP no auto-summary command on R3 and R4.
- B. Use the passive interface on the R1 and R2 interface that connects to the 10.1.1.0/24 and 10.1.2.0/24 subnet respectively.
- C. Use the variance command on R3.
- D. Use the EIGRP no auto-summary command on R1 and R2.
- E. Use the passive interface command between the R3 and R1 connection and between the R3 and R2 connection.

Answer: D

Explanation:

EIGRP automatically summarizes routes at the classful boundary, the boundary where the network address ends as defined by class-based addressing. In most cases, auto summarization is a good thing, keeping the routing tables as compact as possible. In the presence of discontinuous subnetworks, automatic summarization must be disabled for routing to work properly. To turn off auto-summarization, use the following command:

```
Router(config-router)#no auto-summary
```
