A network engineer finds that a core router has crashed without warning. In this situation, which feature can the engineer use to create a crash collection?

- A. warm reloads

- B. NetFlow
- C. core dumps
- D. SNMP
- E. secure copy protocol

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

When a router crashes, it is sometimes useful to obtain a full copy of the memory image (called a core dump) to identify the cause of the crash. Core dumps are generally very useful to your technical support representative.

Four basic ways exist for setting up the router to generate a core dump:

Using Trivial File Transfer Protocol (TFTP)

Using File Transfer Protocol (FTP)

Using remote copy protocol (rcp)

Using a Flash disk

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation
 The question clearly stated that there was an issue with the decrement value in VLAN 102 so we should check VLAN 102 on both DSW1 and DSW2 switches first. Click on the PC Console1 and PC Console2 to access these switches then use the "show running-config" command on both switches

DSW1>enable
DSW1#show running-config
DSW2>enable
DSW2#show
running-config

As shown in the outputs, the DSW1's priority is 200 and is higher than that of DSW2 so DSW1 becomes active switch for the group. Notice that the interface Gig1/0/1 on DSW1 is being tracked so when this interface goes down, HSRP automatically reduces the router's priority by a configurable amount, in this case 5. Therefore the priority of DSW1 goes down from 200 to 195. But this value is still higher than that of DSW2 (190) so DSW1 remains the active switch for the group. To make DSW2 takes over this role, we have to configure DSW1's decrement value with a value equal or greater than 11 so that its result is smaller than that of DSW2 (200 - 11 < 190). Therefore C is the correct answer.
