NEW QUESTION: 4

Helena dropped her iPhone 8 and shattered the display. Her technician, Carlos, aligned with her disappointment and assured her that he could get it fixed that day. She began crying and asked to speak to a manager. What should Carlos have done to keep the situation from escalating? (Choose two.)

- A. Nothing. The customer is just an unreasonable person. Carlos has no control over the policy, and she has to accept that.
- B. Carlos should have let the customer know that he is not authorized to override the cost of the replacement.

C. Carlos should have acknowledged how important it is to have a working iPhone, especially because it is more than just a phone to most people.

D. Carlos should have brought in a manager as soon as he saw that it was accidental damage. These situations never go well, and they usually end in a manager giving the repair to the customer for free.

E. Carlos should have built rapport with his customer by getting to know her as a person. He may have found out that something frustrating happened before coming in to the store, and she is already upset.
