- A. API Gateway
- B. Container Engine for Kubernetes (OKE)
- C. File Storage Service
- D. Streaming Service

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Container Engine for Kubernetes is a fully-managed, scalable, and highly available service that you can use to deploy your containerized applications to the cloud. Use Container Engine for Kubernetes (sometimes abbreviated to just OKE) when your development team wants to reliably build, deploy, and manage cloud-native applications. You specify the compute resources that your applications require, and Container Engine for Kubernetes provisions them on Oracle Cloud Infrastructure in an existing OCI tenancy. Container Engine for Kubernetes uses Kubernetes - the open-source system for automating deployment, scaling, and management of containerized applications across clusters of hosts. Kubernetes groups the containers that make up an application into logical units (called pods) for easy management and discovery.

You can access Container Engine for Kubernetes to define and create Kubernetes clusters using the Console and the REST API. You can access the clusters you create using the Kubernetes command line (kubectl), the Kubernetes Dashboard, and the Kubernetes API.

Container Engine for Kubernetes is integrated with Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Identity and Access Management (IAM), which provides easy authentication with native Oracle Cloud Infrastructure identity functionality.

NEW QUESTION: 3

A pension fund has $100m in liabilities due in the future with an average modified duration of 20 years. The fund also holds a fixed income portfolio worth $125m with an average duration of 15 years. Which of the following approaches would be best suited for the pension fund to cover its interest rate risk?

- A. Sell 15 year bond futures
- B. Enter into an interest rate swap to receive fixed and pay floating
- C. The pension fund does not have any interest rate risk as assets more than adequately cover its liabilities
- D. Enter into an interest rate swap to receive floating and pay fixed

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

In this case, we need a portfolio that is "dollar duration" neutral, ie the net effect of any change in interest rates creates offsetting gains and losses in the asset and liability portfolios. The $125m asset portfolio with a duration of 15 years has a dollar-duration of $$125 \times 15 / 100 = $18.75m$, implying that a 1% change in interest rates will create a $18.75m change in the value of the asset portfolio. Similarly, the liabilities of $100m with a duration of 20 years mean that a 1% change in interest rates will lead to a $20m change in their value. Since $18.75m<$20m, the pension fund is short duration, and needs a strategy that will give it more duration. It can do so by buying more bonds, or swapping out some of its shorter duration bonds with longer duration bonds, or doing other things that will increase the duration of the portfolio so it becomes duration neutral.

Entering into an interest rate swap to receive fixed and pay floating is like a long position in a bond, which will increase duration. Thus Choice 'b' is the correct answer.

A swap to pay fixed and receive floating will have the opposite effect, and so will selling bond futures. Choice 'c' and Choice 'a' are therefore incorrect. As we have seen, Choice 'd' is incorrect as the fund does have interest rate exposure.
