NEW QUESTION: 2

Your network contains an Active Directory domain named adatum.com.

You have a standard primary zone named adatum.com.

You need to provide a user named User1 the ability to modify records in the zone. Other users must be prevented from modifying records in the zone.

What should you do first?

- A. From the properties of the zone, change the zone type.
- B. Run the New Delegation Wizard for the zone.
- C. Run the Zone Signing Wizard for the zone.
- D. From the properties of the zone, modify the start of authority (SOA) record.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation:

The Zone would need to be changed to a AD integrated zone. When you use directory-integrated zones, you can use access control list (ACL) editing to secure a dnsZone object container in the directory tree.

This feature provides detailed access to either the zone or a specified resource record in the zone. For example, an ACL for a zone resource record can be restricted so that dynamic updates are allowed only for a specified client computer or a secure group, such as a domain administrators group. This security feature is not available with standard primary zones. DNS update security is available only for zones that are integrated into Active Directory. After you integrate a zone, you can use the access control list (ACL) editing features that are available in the DNS snap-in to add or to remove users or groups from the ACL for a specific zone or for a resource record.

Standard (not an Active Directory integrated zone) has no Security settings:

You need to firstly change the "Standard Primary Zone" to AD Integrated Zone:

Now there's Security tab:
