A user has created a VPC with CIDR 20.0.0.0/16 using the wizard. The user has created public and VPN only subnets along with hardware VPN access to connect to the user's data center. The user has not yet launched any instance as well as modified or deleted any setup. He wants to delete this VPC from the console. Will the console allow the user to delete the VPC?

- A. Yes, the console will delete all the setups and also delete the virtual private gateway
- B. No, since the NAT instance is running
- C. No, the console will ask the user to manually detach the virtual private gateway first and then allow deleting the VPC
- D. Yes, the console will delete all the setups and detach the

virtual private gateway

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

The user can create subnets as per the requirement within a VPC. If the user wants to connect VPC from his own data center, he can setup a public and VPN only subnet which uses hardware VPN access to connect with his data center. When the user has configured this setup with Wizard, it will create a virtual private gateway to route all traffic of the VPN subnet. If the virtual private gateway is attached with VPC and the user deletes the VPC from the console it will first detach the gateway automatically and only then delete the VPC.

NEW QUESTION: 3

Who is responsible for leading a business architecture engagement with the customer?

A. Technology specialists

B. Account team (account manager, engineer)

C. Services team

D. Sales leadership

E. Business architect

Answer: E

Explanation:

Explanation

There are many variations in the teams that engage with customers. These teams are composed on individuals from team leadership, the account team, and services team. In the context of business architecture, the Cisco Business Architect is the primary role that focuses on engaging with the customer from a business perspective.

Individuals who are aspiring to become a Cisco Business Architect are also considered in these roles.

Aspiring Cisco Business Architects will be more technology-than business-focused. Each role has various levels of responsibilities and different levels of engagement throughout the business-led approach. For example, the level of active engagement for Account Manager is part of their role when working with the Cisco Business Architect. The Account Manager will participate in many of the activities during a business-led approach. Their level of involvement will vary while working with the Cisco Business Architect.

Take into consideration that the roles may differ depending on the organization. For example, the Services Team may be part of the Account Team.

Roles throughout the business architecture approach:

The Cisco Business Architect leads the customer engagement throughout the business-led approach. They determine when and where during the engagement to use available resources. The Cisco Business Architect can rely on the Account Manager, Specialist System Engineers, and other roles to provide varying levels of support during the engagement. The Cisco Business Architect can act as a mentor during the engagement to help the aspiring Cisco Business Architect acquire further knowledge, skills, and experience.

The Account Manager is directly responsible for the customer relationship. They can benefit from many aspects of the skills that are required for Cisco Business Architect. The System Engineer can be considered as the apprentice architect. While there is much they need to aware of, they must be careful of how they apply their knowledge. In some situations, the Cisco Business Architect is responsible for the account. This situation is manifested mainly in the Cisco Customer Solution Architect (CSA) role. This situation is similar to the System Engineer, who has the awareness of the Cisco Business Architect skills. Knowing when and how they are applied allows the Account Manager to understand their role in the context of a business-led approach.

The Technology Specialists are focused on technology and in some situations they are needed to support the engagement that the Cisco Business Architect leads. Outside of those engagements, the Technology Specialists may be the people that are technically involved with the business stakeholders. The Technology Specialists must be aware of the Cisco Business Architect skills and when and how they are applied. Being aware of the skills allows the Technology Specialists to understand their role in the context of a business-led approach. In the case where the Cisco Business Architect is responsible for the account the Technology Specialists will have a different role. These roles do not depict System Engineering leadership, Sales Leadership, or Services. System Engineering Leadership requires awareness, understanding of the maturity levels, engagement type, and the ability to support the roles throughout the business-led approach.
