NEW QUESTION: 1

Your company sells a customer two desktop computers. Both of the computers have Windows 7 Professional preinstalled. One of the computers also has Microsoft Office Home and Business 2010 preinstalled.

The customer contacts you 120 days after the sale requesting to install Office Home and Business 2010 on the computer that was shipped without Office 2010 installed.

You need to provide a solution to license Office 2010 on the computer. The solution must minimize costs.

What should you do?

A. Instruct the customer to contact Microsoft for an additional Office Home and Business 2010 product key.

B. Sell the customer a Full Packaged Product (FPP) license of Office Home and Business 2010.

C. Sell the customer an OEM license of Office Home and Business 2010.

D. Instruct the customer to use the product key that came with the other computer.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Incorrect:

A,B: The OEM license is tied to the computer system with which it has been sold and cannot be transferred to another computer (i.e. lives and dies on a single machine).

C: OEM stands for "Original Equipment Manufacturer" and it can only come pre-installed with a new computer.
